TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN,

My name is Rachel Longoria and I'm a UX design student interested in joining your team as a User Experience intern. My background in the service industry combined with my degree in User Experience Design gives me a unique and relevant set of skills that would benefit a team like yours. Over the last 10 years, I have fine tuned my ability to empathize and work collaboratively in a high stress environment. I'm able to keep a clear head and stay focused on any problem at hand while keeping people at the center of my process.

I'm excited to have the opportunity to work for your company again because I believe I would learn a lot of valuable skills as a designer by working with your design team. As a May 2020 graduate, my next career goal is to apply everything I've learned from school into a real work setting. Design research, product design, prototyping, and usability testing are just a few of the many skills I've learned that could benefit your team. You can find examples of these skills in my included portfolio site.

With this opportunity, I really hope to learn how your design team works together, with other teams, and under certain company constraints that I haven't been exposed to yet as a designer. I hope to grow as a designer, a team player, and a person and I want to help your company succeed during my process of self-development. Thank you so much for taking the time to consider my application and I hope to hear from you soon.

Kind regards,
Rachel Longoria
